It's summer, and the temperature is already at its peak. All are busy ascribing the scorching heat to global warming, deforestation, pollution and lot more. Rather, should we not do something to survive this heat effectively and naturally?

When the flaming Sun is taking away all the energy, a glass of enriched drink, offered with a beaming smile can be thirst quenching and revitalizing. To help the commuters beat the heat, the Annapoorna volunteers from Thiruvananthapuram came up with an idea of providing boiled drinking water infused with natural herbs.

The team had rendered this service for all three months of March, April and May
